

Vision

Esfahan University of Medical Sciences is determined to become one of the top Universities in the region by developing the most efficient curricula and training the most competent graduates in the realm of general practitioners, specialists and at higher education levels. We aim to be a pioneer to conduct innovative basic and clinical researches as well as being responsive to community needs.

Mission

Medical school of Esfahan University of Medical Sciences, according to this belief that the focus of continuous development is healthy person, has considered the preservation and promotion of public health and the health of people as one of its first mission priorities. We promote excellent basic and clinical services not only by training general practitioners, specialists, and scholars as well as recruiting committed and efficient workforce but also by providing suitable learning opportunities and using innovation in the curricula of all majors and conducting community-based researches. Our graduates, by having appropriate clinical and research skills, are suitable lifelong learners which can meet the needs of society in general and they can cooperate with other health care teams.

Principle values of Esfahan Medical School:

- Obeying Islamic and medical ethics
- Principles of research
- Community-centered approach
- Patients' bill of rights
- Using innovation in education and providing health services
- Applying the findings of latest researches in the region and around the world
- Cooperation with other health-related fields